A DETECTIVE'S EXPERIENCE.

His Successful Undertaking and Escape from an Impending Fate.

One morning several years ago, just as the dull gray light was beginning to show itself in the east, a small band of men might have been seen deployed about a house on Ferry street, in Buffalo. There was nothing special either in the dress or appearance of the men to indicate their intention, but it was plain that they had business of importance on hand.
Suddenly a man appeared at one of the windows, took in the situation at a glance, and, swinging himself outward with wonderful quickness, scaled the roof of the house. This man was Tom Ballard, the notorious counterfeiter; and, armed to the teeth and fully realizing his situation, he defied justice and the officials below him. Some of the officers, knowing the desperate character of the man, proposed to shoot him until he was killed, but one of the number promptly protested, and declared that if his brother officers would assist him to ascend he would capture the man alive. Accordingly he began the difficult and dangerous task, and succeeded in bringing his prisoner to the ground in safety.

The man who accomplished this task was Mr. Thomas Curtin, the present superintendent of city police of Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Curtin is a man who is known by every prominent detective and policeman in America, and he stands pre-eminently in the front rank of his profession. Quiet and gentlemanly in appearance and manners, he possesses a courage combined with marked physical powers, that make him the terror of evil-doers and the pride of law-abiding citizens. Few people can realize, however, the trials, exposures, and even privations, to which the members of every municipal police and fire department are exposed. Compelled to be on duty at uncertain hours, subjected to the most inclement weather, and often necessitated by the nature of their duties to protracted undertakings, they endure a nervous and physical strain that is terrible. Such was the experience of Mr. Curtin in former days; and it is not surprising that he found himself suffering from a mysterious physical trouble. In relating his experience to a representative of this paper he said:

"At times when I was on duty I would feel an unaccountable weariness and lack of energy. My appetite was also uncertain and my head seemed dull and heavy. I did not fully understand these troubles, but supposed, as most people suppose, that I was suffering from malaria. I tried to throw off the feeling, but it would not go. I thought I might overcome it, but found I was mistaken, and I finally became so badly off that it was almost impossible to attend to my duties. I have known any number of men in the police and fire departments of this country who have been afflicted as I was, and I doubt not there are to-day hundreds similarly troubled who, like myself, did not know the cause, or really what ailed them.

"Your present appearance, Mr.
Curtin, does not indicate much physical debility," said the interviewer, as he looked at the 220 pounds of bone and muscle standing five feet eleven inches in height before him.
"Oh, no; that is altogether a thing of the past, and I am happy to say that for more than a year I have enjoyed almost perfect health, although I now realize that I was on the road to certain death by Bright's disease of the kidneys and traveling at a very rapid pace.

"How did you come to recover so completely?"

"That is just what I want to tell you, for I believe it may be of great service to many others in my profession, who may possibly hear of it. I began the use of a popular remedy at the earnest solicitation of a number of friends in this city, and found to my great gratification that I began feeling better. This feeling continued and I gained in strength and vigor until now I am perfectly well—and wholly through the instrumentality of Warner's Safe Cure, which I believe to be the best medicine for police men, firemen, railroad men or any other class of people exposed to danger or a change of weather, ever discovered. Since my recovery I have recommended it everywhere, and never knew a case where it failed either to cure or benefit. I would not be without it under any consideration, and I am positive it is a wonderfully valuable and at the same time entirely harmless remedy. Indeed, I see that Dr. Gunn, dean of the United States Medical College of New York, indorses it in the highest terms."

"So you experience little difficulty in the execution of your duties now, Mr. Curtin, do you?"

"None whatever. Our department was never in better condition than at present."

"And do you never have any fear of some of the desperadoes whom you have been the means of bringing to justice?"

"Not in the least. Such men do not try to retaliate, partially because they have not the courage, but oftener because they respect an officer who does his duty."

The policemen, firemen, letter carriers and other public employees in this country have a particularly trying life. When, therefore, a simple and pure remedy that can restore and sustain the health of all such men is found, it should be cause for great congratulation, especially when recommended by such a man as Superintendent Thomas Curtin of Buffalo.

MR. DEAKIN'S WORK.

The stay of Mr. Deakin, the artist, is rapidly drawing to a close, and while there are many things connected with his coming here that are causes for congratulation, there are also several causes for regret. Mr.
Deakin's standing as an artist is unquestioned. He is an incessant worker, and his productiveness is remarkable, considering the care taken and the thought displayed in his art work; and yet he never carries a picture two years; they are all sold and sold at the original price placed upon them. Considering the commercial value, therefore, of his works, it is the highest compliment that can be paid him to make the declaration given above. He has been here about two months, and has gone to considerable expense and trouble in fitting up a room for the display of his works. The studio has been free to all interested in art, and hundreds have taken advantage of his ever cordial reception and courteous treatment of all visitors. To art students, the benefit of his work has been subject to their enquiring gaze; to art lovers the pleasure afforded in viewing his magnificent conceptions and splendid execution has been absolutely free from any expense that has benefited the artist. Doubtless, like all other artists, Mr. Deakin is not above deriving gratification from witnessing the pleasure his materialized —if the expression be pardonable—skill and genius afford the most casual admirer of art; but even this does not afford the artist all that is necessary in life. There is no question but Mr. Deakin's visit here and the willingness with which he has displayed his work has been a great benefit to art students and has helped materially to develop a higher art taste in the community; and this being true, he is certainly entitled to the gratitude of local artists, as a higher appreciation of his works means higher art intelligence and greater discernment in detecting the beauties in the works of local artists. All this is very good.
The great regret is in the fact that one of our wealthier men, those whose means place them in a condition to render valuable aid in the development of refinement and art taste in a community, fail to appreciate the utility of talents which are higher and nobler, though less practical, than those which enabled them to hold such enviable if not powerful positions. We will not say it is a duty they owe their fellows, but we will assert that it should be a pleasure, a noble aspiration in them to encourage any art that will contribute to the elevation and ennobling of mankind. To purchase one of Mr.
Deakin's pictures would be as nothing to one of a hundred men in Salt Lake; he has yet to record the first purchase here.

It may be said that to purchase Mr. Deakin's pictures would be no help to local artists. This reasoning is limited. It would show local artists that there are men in the community who delight in encouraging the higher arts, and would inspire local genius to greater effort, in the confidence that excellence and merit in them would meet certain recognition from those who, uninspired by that divine feeling which manifests itself in poetry, music, the drama, and art, are still its humble admirers and encouraging devotees.

Now Mr. Deakin is not hard up, he is not aware that this article is to be published, he has asked no help; but his pictures are for sale; he is a fine artist, and feeling a pride in our city, we would regret to have him depart with the thought that the wealthy men here knew nothing that did not smack of 10 per cent. interest per annum.

Meantime the artist is industriously laboring, and the time spent here, even if a single purchase is not made, will be a golden harvest to him, for there are practical lovers of art if not here, and the subject, the thoughts, the coloring which the artist has acquired here, will furnish the material for many an hour's labor that will glow and make the canvas live. He will be here up to the 27th inst. until which time all those who love art are as welcome to his studio as the sweet flowers of May are to the weary watcher for spring.

The Romany Rye.

Monday night, October 22d, for five nights and Wednesday matinee, the great spectacular drama of "The Romany Rye" will be put upon the boards at the Salt Lake theatre. The following is a sketch of the play: The story tells us there are two brothers, Royston by name, who have made imprudent marriages.
One married a handsome gypsy girl, who or good cause leaves him, carrying her child back with her to her gypsy tribe. This child afterward becomes Jack Hearne, the personification of "The Romany Rye." Mother and child are supposed to be dead, however, and the father marries again and leaves a son, Philip, heir to the estate. The other aged Royston, Jack's and Philip's uncle, has secretly married some obscure creature, who dies and leaves an orphan behind her in the care of her grandfather, a dilettante bird fancier, whose shop is in that part of London known as Little Queer street, St. Giles. This is the state of affairs when the curtain rises, and we learn shortly afterward that Jack is in love with Ger-tie, unknown to herself the heir-at-law to his uncle, her father's estate in possession of which he has come, and that he proposes to marry Ger-tie to make good his title; that Jack is aware of who he (Jack) is, but being fond of his gypsy life, does not propose to declare himself and claim his estate unless Philip's recalcitrance shall become too pronounced, and the story of the play tells of Philip pursuing Gertie in and out through the most thrilling dramatic situations. The stage effects produced in the play are certainly beyond anything yet seen in this city.

Directory for 1884.

Already parties have determined to publish a directory of this city for 1884. It will also embrace a directory of Ogden, Provo and Logan, and perhaps of Park city and other places. The intention is to give a business directory of all the more important cities and towns in the Territory, together with statistical, election, official and other information which can be embraced in a directory and which may prove of interest to persons interested directly or indirectly in the Territory. The money is on hand to carry on the work, which will consist of between 400 and 500 pages, and it is the determination to make it a book as accurate as care can make it and as neat, handy and strong as means and skill can secure. The money, as before said, is already up to push the work to completion; not one dollar of assistance will be solicited and no money will be collected until the appearance of the book. The parties are experienced, they mean business, and the work should be a success artistically and financially.

The numbering of houses now in progress here, will make a directory for this city absolutely indepen-dable.
